FRIDAY, APRIL 19, 1745.

Extract of a Private Letter from Franckfort, dated April 18, 1745.

Maillebois set out on the 15th for Paris, from whence he is to go, as we are told here, in more Characters than one, to Italy; and the Day after To-morrow, if the French Minister here does not fail in his Calculation, the Prince of Conti will arrive, and take on him the Command. The same the Marshal left us, there happened a very unlucky accident: A Detachment from the French Army, consisting of some Thousand Men, advanc'd with a View to surround and carry off a great Body of Hussars that appeared in a Wood near Limpourg, on the Lahn. Soon as the Hussars discover'd them, they fled precipitously into another Wood, where lay a Regiment of Moravians, with half a Dozen Field Pieces, ready to receive the French, who came pouring at the Heels of the Hussars. The Briskness of the Discharge, both Artillery and small Arms, gave some Check to their Progress, at which you will not wonder, when I tell you that upwards of 100 were kill'd on the Spot. The Fight continued afterwards pretty hot for about an Hour, when the French thought proper to retire, that the few that were left; for besides the kill'd and wounded, the Hussars made a great many Prisoners, particularly a Colonel, who was seized upon the Bridge of Limpourg, just as he was entering the Town. The French Regiments began Yesterday to march towards Mannheim, in order to pass the Rhine there; the whole Army had Orders Yesterday to hold themselves ready to move at an Hour's Warning. The same Person who wrote to me lately from Munich, is now at Augsburg; and by a Letter, dated 15th, assures me, that the Accommodation was made; and that the Prince of Furstenberg, and Marshal Seckendorff, are gone to Schongau, in order to regulate every Thing with the Count de Cothman, the Person mentioned in his Letter, who has the Queen of Hungary's full Powers. In the mean time I have a very curious Letter from Munich, which is enclosed, and send you inclos'd, that you may see in what Terms they write from that Capital. For my Part, I do not make myself answerable for Events; all I can do, is to send you the best we have, the shortest Way.

Extract of a Private Letter, dated Munich, April the 12th, 1745.

The Evening of the Day before Yesterday, a Revelation both in the Court and in the City, that the Highness, our Elector, had, in the present State of Affairs, thought fit to embrace a Neutral Position. What occasioned this was, that the Prince of Orange set out on the 9th, in order to confer with Count Colorado, the Austrian Minister; from whence he return'd on the 10th in the Afternoon. As we credit what we wish to be true, this Report is generally believed, and immediately propagated. The very Day following Hostilities continued; the Duke of Saxe Hildburghausen march'd to Freilangen, where some Light-arm'd of the Enemy had already taken Post, and General de St. Germain push'd on the other Side towards Aeling, where a Corps of Warraffins then who retir'd to the Body commanded by General. This Day, however, we were alarm'd with the News that his Highness intends to quit the Country, and that his Army is to follow him, in form behind the Lech, and there to wait for his Departure, and for the March of the Army; we are like to fall into the Hands of the Austrians. At present we have the last Stroke of ill News possible for us to receive; the Prince of Saxe Hildburghausen would needs follow the Austrians, who are at Freilangen, in order to make himself master of the Bridge which they have over the Isar, at Munich; but they being strongly reinforced, attack'd our Army, and have totally defeated it. It is said that we have lost 800 Men, but I am afraid the Loss is much greater; the rather, as it is confess'd, that a Battalion of Hessian

Troops are made Prisoners of War. All our Hopes now remain in the Negotiation of Prince Furstenberg, who set out Yesterday; and who, perhaps, has sign'd a Peace which may preserve us our Prince, whom some would take away, that they may keep him for ever in their Hands.

LONDON.

The Count de Lautrec has cured the City of Lyons of Disaffection, by hanging some of the most turbulent; but there is another Dissemper broke out there, which has puzzled even this able Physician; in short, the Itch of Bankruptcy is very catching, and since the End of November last, 32 considerable Traders have broke in this City; one of which being convicted of a Fraud, was led thro' the great Streets in his Shirt, with a lighted Taper in his Hand, then set on the Pillory, afterwards burnt in the Hand, and lastly, conducted to the Gallies for Five Years.

There has been lately an Insurrection in the Sevens, in which it is said, the Regiment of Poitou has suffer'd extremely.

Notice has been given at Hanover, by the Beat of Drum, that all Deserters who repair to their respective Corps in three Months, shall receive a free Pardon.

The Fauleon Sloop of War took on the 16th Inst. about a League off Dunkirk, a French Privateer call'd the Union.

His Majesty has been pleas'd to appoint Counsellor Clive, Member of Parliament for St. Michael's in the County of Cornwall, to be one of the Barons of the Exchequer, in the room of Mr. Baron Carter, deceased.

Les AVANTURES de TELEMACHE, FILS d'ULYSSE, par Francois de Salignac de la Motte Feuquelin, Precepteur des Enfants de France, & depuis Archeveque de Cambrai, &c. Nouvelle Edition, revue & corrigee avec l'In: Enrichie des Imitations des Anciens, de la Vie de l'Auteur & d'un petit Dictionnaire Mythologique & Geographique, avec des Figures. Par D. DURAND, Min. de la Savoie, & Membre de la S. R.

The Editor's Advertisement to the Reader.

This Edition has several Advantages above any that have hitherto appear'd. Besides that it is very correct, the Historical Eulogium on the Author, formerly compos'd by me, but now revis'd and corrected, is here added: As also the Greek Imitations, which belong in a great measure to the late Mr. Albert Fabricius, the Latin Imitations or Allusions, which I furnish'd for my Quota; new Greek and Latin Imitations now first publish'd, and especially some from the ancient Tragedians, which are not less entertaining. As to the Fifth and Sixth Books, which scarce contain any Thing but the Philistines of Sophocles, we have not contented ourselves with referring the Reader to the Original, and showing the Number of the Verses imitated; but have placed, at the Bottom of the Page, the most beautiful and striking Passages of that Tragedy, though in Latin, to accommodate ourselves to the Capacities of the greatest Part of our Readers. In short, nothing has been neglected to render this Edition useful and agreeable to all Sorts of Persons.

Apprehensions; for it suffers no lurking Vapour in the Body, but wholly extirpates it Root and
